

Message from the President

Greetings Compatriots!

I hope this message finds all of you and your families well and in good health. Planning continues for our upcoming April 12th Halifax Day celebration. This year is the 249th Anniversary of the Adoption of the Halifax Resolves and we are expecting a large crowd again this year. The Event Registration and the Luncheon Reservations have gone live on the State Website and can be accessed using the following link: Halifax Resolves Day Registration. If you would like to attend or know someone who would be interested in attending please pass this link along to them.

Unfortunately we have recently lost a couple of our former chapter members. On February 22, 2025, John Rives "Judge" Manning, Jr., 84 passed away in Wake Forest at the home of his son. On February 24, Ernest Cooper Bobbitt, 77 of Roanoke Rapids passed away with his family by his side. Our sincere condolences go out to the families of each one of these Compatriots.

Compatriot Joe Pearce has had issues with an artificial hip over the past several months. After a couple of surgeries he is now at home recovering and is doing well. He thanks the chapter and members for their prayers and concerns.

We had the honor this past meeting of presenting the winner for the Knight Essay Contest for 2025, Eliza Parker of Faith Christian School and our chapter nominee for the American History Teacher of the Year competition, Ashley Oskiera, who has advanced to the state level and will now compete for the national award. Congratulations to these two inspiring individuals.

We have a special treat coming up at our regular chapter meeting in April. Chapter Genealogist David Gammon will present another very interesting program titled, "Local Effects of the Revolution". We always look forward to a visit by David at our chapter meetings. Along with a great meal prepared by the Women of the Halifax UMC the meeting will take place on Wednesday, May 14th.

Bill Riggan

The next meeting will be held Wed., May 14, at the Halifax United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall, 150 S. King St. in Halifax, at 6:30 pm.

On the agenda: Chapter Genealogist David Gammon will present a program titled, "Local Effects of the Revolution".

The cost of the meal will be $15. Reservations are required and must be in by 5:00 pm on Fri., May 9. Please contact President Riggan at (919) 495-0706 or bill.riggan.sar@gmail.com if you're coming.

This is the fifth in a series of articles discussing the settlement of estates in 18th and 19th century North Carolina.

In our previous articles, we have discussed settling estates in early North Carolina. This article will cover the interesting topic of dower rights.

A dower right belonged to a wife. Technically she gained this right when she married her husband. It guaranteed her at least one-third of all the lands her husband owned, both preceding and during their marriage. You will often see deeds in which the wife signed away her dower right to a piece of land, meaning she gave her permission for it to be sold. Unfortunately, this rule was not enforced consistently.

At the death of her husband, the widow was still guaranteed at least one-third of his land. If he died intestate, she had to petition the court for her dower right. Such a petition typically included the death date of the deceased, the amount of acres he owned, and a physical description of the land. Several neighbors were usually appointed to lay off the widow's dower right. This land was hers for her lifetime, and she could not sell it. The widow occasionally sold the use of the dower lands, especially if she was moving away, but this use was limited to her lifetime. After her death, this land reverted to the heirs of her husband.

If the husband died testate, the situation changed. If his will left the widow at least one-third of his lands, all was well. But if he left her less than one-third, the widow had to petition the court for her dower lands, just as if her husband had died intestate. Some of these petitions are quite impassioned and accusatory, and reveal the widow felt she had been cheated. The will of James Barnes of Halifax County, who owned plenty of land, simply stated that his widow should apply to the court for her dower right! I can criticize him since he is my direct ancestor.

Remember that a dower right was for the lifetime of the widow, even if she married again. Indeed, some widows were quite adept at collecting dower rights, as there was no limit to the number of dower rights a woman could hold. Peggy Whitaker of near Scotland Neck was married four times, and had a dower right from each husband. As mentioned earlier, such dower rights were only for the widow's lifetime, so when she died, those lands were redistributed among the heirs of each of Peggy's deceased husbands. Untangling that network of lands must have been quite a task!

Researchers may have often seen confusing deeds in which a man and his wife sell land, and in which not only the husband and wife sign the deed, but also an unidentified second woman. Who could she be? In such a case, consider the possibility that she has a dower right in the land, and is signing the deed to give permission for its sale. She is possibly the widowed mother of the man or his wife, or perhaps a stepmother. She might be somebody else altogether! Identifying her might provide an important clue.

In our next article we will discuss the sticky subject of dividing estates.
